

WHAT'S LEGAL ABOUT YOUR HEALTH?

Authors • Cancer Rights Attorneys • Sisters • Speakers

Joanna Fawzy Morales and Monica Fawzy Bryant have a combined 40 years of cancer rights law experience. Together, they have co-authored the only book on the topic. Cancer Rights Law: An Interdisciplinary Approach, was published by the American Bar Association in 2018. They have presented more than 1,500 educational seminars for individuals who have been diagnosed with cancer, their caregivers, lawyers, advocates, health care professionals, elected officials, and the general public.

Morales and Bryant co-founded Triage Cancer in 2012. Through free events, materials, and resources, Triage Cancer educates individuals diagnosed with cancer, their caregivers, and health care professionals to help them keep their jobs, insurance, and even their homes. In 2021, the organization doubled its annual reach to more than 1,000,000 people.

Morales and Bryant publish regularly in professional oncology journals and books, and provide expert media commentary. Bryant is an adjunct professor at the University of Illinois at Chicago School of Law, teaching a course on Cancer Rights Law. Morales has been an adjunct professor at Loyola Law School and Wayne State University Law School.
