

Quick Guide to Camp Lejeune Justice Act

The Camp Lejeune Justice Act expanded benefits to Veterans and civilians exposed to contaminated water at Marine Corps Base Camp Lejeune or Marine Corps Air Station (MCAS) New River, North Carolina. This Quick Guide explains the disability and health care benefits available, who qualifies for benefits, how the Camp Lejeune Justice Act added new benefits, and how to access those benefits.

Camp Lejeune Justice Act (CLJA)

The PACT Act of 2022 improved access to health care and disability benefits for Veterans who were exposed to toxic substances during their service and, as a result, developed serious medical conditions. Section 804 of the PACT Act, also called the Camp Lejeune Justice Act, builds upon the benefits already available. The CLJA allows individuals exposed to the contaminated water to file for financial relief.

Who Qualifies:

You can file for financial relief if either of these are true:

- You lived, worked, or were otherwise exposed at Camp Lejeune for at least 30 days total between August 1, 1953, and December 31, 1987, or
- Your mother lived, worked, or was otherwise exposed at Camp Lejeune for at least 30 days total between August 1, 1953, and December 31, 1987, while pregnant with you

How to File:

You (or your legal representative) must first file a CLJA administrative claim with the U.S. Department of the Navy. The Navy has six months to approve or reject your claim. If the Navy accepts your claim and you accept the compensation the Navy offers you, then you waive your right to file a lawsuit.

If the Navy rejects your claim, or if it takes more than six months to process it, you can file a lawsuit in the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of North Carolina to receive monetary compensation (called “damages”) for the harm resulting from your medical condition. Lawsuits under the Act must be filed before August 11, 2024.

Filing a Claim Under the Elective Option

Those who file claims with the Navy, who have certain qualifying medical conditions, may be eligible for faster claims decisions under the Elective Option (EO).

The amount of money an individual can receive under the EO depends on whether they have a Tier 1 or a Tier 2 medical condition and how long they were exposed to the contaminated water:

Elective Option Benefits	30-364 days	1 year to 5 years	More than 5 years
Tier 1 Condition	$150,000	$300,000	$450,000
Tier 2 Condition	$100,000	$250,000	$400,000

- Tier 1 conditions: kidney cancer, liver cancer, non-Hodgkin’s lymphoma, leukemias, bladder cancer
- Tier 2 conditions: multiple myeloma, Parkinson’s disease, kidney disease / end stage renal disease, systemic sclerosis / systemic scleroderma
- In addition, claims that show a medical condition that resulted in death will be offered an additional $100,000.
 - The maximum possible EO offer is $550,000 (= Tier 1 Qualifying Injury with more than 5 years of exposure, resulting in death).

Individuals who accept a settlement under the EO option are guaranteed payment. Individuals who accept an EO settlement can expect to receive payment within 60 days or less. For more information about the EO option, visit: navy.mil/Camp-Lejeune-Justice-Act-Claims/More-about-the-Elective-Option.

Note: You may see ads about filing lawsuits for these benefits. You do not need to hire an attorney to file a CLJA claim. Keep in mind that it also may not be in your best interests to file a lawsuit. You should weigh your options carefully when deciding whether to file a claim or file a lawsuit. CLJA claims are separate from claims for VA disability benefits and will not affect VA disability or health care benefits. For more information and to complete the claim form, visit navy.mil/clja.
